

Seven Easy Ways to Make Extra Money

Student life is already hard and expensive enough as it is. We understand that balancing work, school, a social life, and family can be demanding at times. Most students have no choice but to earn their salary at a low-paying job and to help you get through your next semester with some extra cash in your pocket, here are some examples of easy ways to earn extra cash without having to sacrifice extra time.

1. Use Your Body

Donating your plasma and blood is a valuable service for those in need and pays nicely. Being a research subject would be an interesting experience as well!

2. Utilize Your Vehicle

Not all students own a vehicle, putting a higher demand for UBER drivers on college campuses. There are many other options besides being an UBER driver, including fast food or grocery delivery.

3. Build Your Own Recycling Center

Setting up a recycling center in your dorm can be an easy way to collect free cash. Before you know it, you'll have a full bin of used cans, bottles, and plastics to exchange.

4. Take Advantage of Your Computer Skills

Did you know that you could complete online surveys for quick and easy cash? Earn hundreds of dollars per week by taking surveys in your free time.

5. Clean Up After Your Lazy Classmates

Sorority and fraternity houses will hire cleaning and laundering services. Just got to get pass the mess first to earn some cash!

6. Sell Your Extra Stuff

Sell some of the old items you don't use anymore including books, clothes, and even your class notes! For you creative students, you can make money selling your crafts on Etsy!

7. Put Your Education and Skills to Practical Use

Do you have experience creating presentations, writing blogs and social media posts, working with Microsoft or Adobe programs, or graphic design? You can earn money while refining your own skills at the same time by completing projects online for companies through Scholarbiz. It's also a great chance to develop relationships with people who you will want to know when looking for a career in your field of interest!

With some creativity, skills and a little initiative, making money for your remaining semesters should be a breeze. Wouldn't it be great to gain some practical work experience and get paid at the same time without the hassle of committing to an internship?
