

Making an Impact

Businesses of all sizes have projects that need to be completed and often times, they are pushed aside due to lack of time or available resources. Simple projects that will be addressed “when there is time” include updating content on websites, converting paper forms to online templates, and updating marketing material are just a few that come to mind. When is the last time you sat down to write a blog, a press release, or a proposal for a new sales opportunity? All of these projects take time and as companies are forced to do more with less, they usually never get completed.

Having access to a team of individuals with a variety of skill sets, when you need them, is a luxury all businesses should utilize. Scholarbiz provides you this bench of resources. Projects take less than five minutes to post and within a day, a qualified student is assigned to your project. As a business owner, you have provided the student real life work experience and in return, you received quality work at a very affordable price. The students utilized by businesses via Scholarbiz have done amazing work and some have leveraged their Scholarbiz experiences to gain internships in their field of study. Post a project, make an impact with a student, and see results in your business.
